ACID SENSITIVITY SURVEY OF LAKES IN ONTARIO — 1985

This fourth summary of the acid sensitivity of 5,341 lakes throughout Ontario is issued by the Ministry of the Environment as part of its Acidic Precipitation in Ontario Study (APIOS). The continuing survey is based on chemical analysis of water samples taken from each lake.

This survey is providing a better understanding of how Ontario's lakes are being affected by acidic precipitation (rain and snow, as well as dry particulate fallout from the atmosphere) and is furnishing background data for determining future trends. Equally important, it provides some guide to the status of recreational waters for a concerned public.

The primary factor in determining the sensitivity of a lake to acidification is its alkalinity, a measure of its natural, acid-neutralizing capacity. Lakes vary considerably in their capability to neutralize acids, with those in alkaline soil or limestone deposits having greater capability to neutralize acidic precipitation. In south-central Ontario, loadings from the atmosphere are several times greater than in remote areas of the province; therefore, such regions as Muskoka, Haliburton, Parry Sound and Algonquin Park lakes, as well as lakes in parts of the Manitoulin, Timiskaming and Algoma districts, are more likely to incur decreases in alkalinity and pH as a consequence. The pH scale, ranging from 0 to 14, is a measure of acidity and alkalinity with 7 neutral and 0 and 14 the respective acid and alkaline extremes. Studies have shown acidification of lakes results in changes or decreases in fish populations as well as other biological communities.

This brochure includes an alphabetical list by county or district of the lakes sampled to date, with an indication of the relative sensitivity of each of the lakes to the acidification process. It also contains Table I which gives a summary of both the number of lakes in each alkalinity class by county and district and a summary expressed in percentages.

For example, the table points out that 4.1 per cent of the total lakes surveyed to date were found to be acidified to the extent that their ability to support aquatic life is severely limited. A total of 3,973 lakes, accounting for 74.4 per cent of those surveyed, were found to have some susceptibility to acidification (14.8 per cent were extremely sensitive, 38.3 per cent were moderately sensitive, 17.2 per cent were of low sensitivity). 25.6 per cent, or 1,368 of the lakes surveyed, were found to be not sensitive to the cumulative effects of acid rain.

The data contained in this list were collected by the Ministry of the Environment and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Level 1 lakes have zero or negative alkalinity; they have already become acidified. Many fish species may be absent from such lakes, which may be without fish altogether. Level 1 lakes not naturally high in organic color, such as beaver ponds, are exceptionally clear. Clouds of algae may accumulate in inshore areas. Clam, snail and many amphibian species are also absent.

Level 2 lakes have very low alkalinity and are extremely sensitive to heavy acid loadings. Fish kills and other biological damage may occur during spring run-off.

Level 3 lakes are moderately sensitive to heavy acid loadings. Fish and other biota are generally less at risk in comparison to level 2 lakes.

Level 4 lakes are of low sensitivity and likely to experience biological damage only under extreme snow-melt conditions during spring run-off.

Level 5 lakes are not sensitive to acid loadings and are capable of withstanding heavy acid loadings during spring run-off without biological damage. Such lakes contain sufficient buffering capacity to neutralize acid rain for an indefinite period of time.

Lake sampling and analysis is continuing, and up-dated listings will be published periodically giving sensitivity ratings of lakes tested in the future.

ENQUÊTE SUR LA SENSIBILITÉ DES LACS DE L'ONTARIO AUX DÉPÔTS ACIDES — 1985

Ce quatrième rapport, qui résume le résultat des analyses sur la sensibilité de 5 341 lacs de l'Ontario aux dépôts acides, est publié par le ministère de l'Environnement dans le cadre de son Étude sur les précipitations acides en Ontario. Cette étude permanente se fonde sur l'analyse chimique d'échantillons prélevés dans chaque lac.

L'étude permet d'augmenter nos connaissances sur la façon dont les précipitations acides (pluies et neige, de même que particules sèches dans l'atmosphère) touchent les lacs de l'Ontario, et de recueillir des données qui permettront de déterminer les tendances futures. L'étude permet également de renseigner la population sur la qualité des eaux utilisées à des fins récréatives.

Le principal facteur qui permet de déterminer la sensibilité d'un lac à l'acidification est son alcalinité, c'est-à-dire la mesure de sa capacité naturelle à neutraliser les acides. Cette capacité varie considérablement d'un lac à un autre; ce sont les lacs situés dans des régions à sol alcalin ou à dépôts de calcaire qui neutralisent le mieux les précipitations acides. Dans le Centre-Sud de l'Ontario, les arrivées d'acides sont beaucoup plus considérables que dans les régions éloignées de la province; les lacs situés dans des régions comme Muskoka, Haliburton, Parry Sound et le parc Algonquin, de même que certains lacs des districts de Manitoulin, de Timiskaming et d'Algoma sont par conséquent plus susceptibles de voir leur alcalinité et donc leur pH décroître. L'échelle de pH, de 0 à 14, est une mesure de l'acidité et de l'alcalinité, 7 étant neutre et 0 et 14 étant respectivement les extrêmes acide et alcalin. Des études ont permis d'établir que l'acidification des lacs se traduit par une modification ou une réduction quantitative des espèces de poissons et autres espèces biologiques.

Cette brochure comprend une liste alphabétique par comté ou district des lacs ayant fait jusqu'ici l'objet d'analyses, et indique la sensibilité relative de chacun de ces lacs au processus d'acidification. Elle contient également le Tableau I, qui précise le nombre et le pourcentage de lacs dans chaque catégorie d'alcalinité par comté et district.

Par exemple, le tableau souligne que 4,1 pour cent des lacs étudiés étaient acidifiés au point de rendre très difficile la survie de toute espèce aquatique. Sur le nombre total de lacs étudiés, 3 973, soit 74,4 pour cent, se sont avérés plus ou moins sensibles à l'acidification (14,8 pour cent étaient extrêmement sensibles, 38,3 pour cent modérément sensibles et 17,2 pour cent peu sensibles à l'acidification). Enfin, 1 368 lacs, soit 25,6 pour cent des lacs étudiés, n'ont manifesté aucune sensibilité aux effets cumulatifs des pluies acides.

Les données figurant dans le rapport ont été recueillies par le ministère de l'Environnement et le ministère des Richesses naturelles de l'Ontario.

Les lacs de niveau 1 ne sont pas alcalins; ils sont déjà acidifiés. De nombreuses espèces — et parfois toutes les espèces — de poissons en sont disparues. Les lacs de niveau 1 qui n'ont pas beaucoup de matières organiques naturelles (comme les étangs à castors) sont d'une limpidité remarquable. On trouve parfois des accumulations d'algues près des rives; les coques, les escargots et de nombreux amphibiens en sont également absents.

Les lacs de niveau 2 ont un degré d'alcalinité très bas et sont extrêmement sensibles aux arrivées importantes d'acides. Les ruissellements du printemps peuvent entraîner la mort de bon nombre de poissons et causer d'autres dommages au milieu biologique.

Les lacs de niveau 3 sont modérément sensibles aux arrivées importantes d'acides. Les poissons et autres êtres vivants courent généralement moins de risques que ceux des lacs de niveau 2.

Les lacs de niveau 4 sont peu sensibles. Seuls les ruissellements produits par des fontes de neige très importantes au printemps risquent de nuire au milieu biologique.

Les lacs de niveau 5 sont insensibles aux dépôts d'acides et peuvent absorber d'importantes quantités d'acides lors des ruissellements du printemps sans subir de dommages biologiques. La capacité tampon de ces lacs leur permet de neutraliser les pluies acides indéfiniment.

Les travaux d'échantillonnage et d'analyse se poursuivent. Le ministère publiera périodiquement des rapports à jour sur les degrés de sensibilité des lacs qui seront étudiés à l'avenir.
